Dear Los Angeles Charter Leaders,

Happy New Year! I hope you had the chance to refresh and recharge over the holidays. We are ready to support you, your students, families and staff during what could be a historic, and challenging period for public education in Los Angeles.

Today we write with updates and recommendations on preparations for UTLA's planned strike next week on Thursday, January 10. We are hosting a call at 5pm today to help you prepare. If you did not receive a calendar invite for today's call, please email Chris Copolillo, cc'd here.

You should have received calendar invites for strike preparedness calls on January 3 and January 9, and strike check-in calls on January 10 and 11. If a strike does occur and extends more than two days, we will host daily member support calls for the duration at 5pm.

The most important thing we ask you to do as strike date approaches is notify your families and staff that your school will be open. In addition, your CCSA Regional Advocacy representative will be reaching out by the end of the week to ensure that you have whatever need to feel prepared and supported next week.

If you have questions or need any additional supports, please reach out. We look forward to speaking with you later today.

INFORMATIONAL UPDATE

UTLA will likely strike on January 10 - communicate to your community that you will be open.

In December, UTLA designated January 10 as a day to strike unless there is significant movement on contract negotiations beforehand. Today Austin Beutner and Alex Caputo-Pearl were interviewed on KPCC, and UTLA agreed to return to the bargaining table on Monday, January 7. While we hope that UTLA and LAUSD will reach a resolution next Monday to avoid a strike, we are preparing as if a strike will occur next Thursday.

To that end, we ask you to send this updated letter to your families immediately.

UTLA Calls for Cap on LA Charter Schools While Admitting Demand is Illegal

On Friday December 21, UTLA called for a cap on charters in Los Angeles in a 3pm press conference. On the 21st and in interviews since, Union President Alex Caputo-Pearl noted that a charter cap is not a bargainable issue in the current contract negotiations. However, Caputo-Pearl reiterated in an interview today that LAUSD's problems are related to student enrollment in charter schools.

CCSA agrees that both a local moratorium or any effort to bargain charter schools through the contract are illegal. As noted in our statement on UTLA's call for the charter cap, we know that such a cap will not solve LAUSD's fiscal problems, and we believe that all parties ought to work together to ensure that all students have access to great public schools.

We ask that you remain engaged as we work to protect the rights of our students, families and educators over the coming weeks and months – we now have an indication that UTLA will pursue anti-charter policy during and after the contract negotiation process.

Once again, to prepare your communities for the threats of a strike, we recommend that you communicate with staff and families as soon as possible, using the following updated templates. This is the most important step you can take right now.
